AMENDMENTS TO THE ABSTRACT

Please substitute the following paragraph(s) for the abstract now appearing in the currently filed specification:

--A card game system, which is for playing a battle game in which a character and an opponent make an attack on each other based on information recorded in a card, includes an attack control device that controls, when attack content identification information recorded in the card is read by a reading device during the battle game, a magnitude of the attack associated with the attack content identification information based on attack control information associated with the attack content identification information and character identification information on the character playing the battle game, and a control information update device that changes, when specific conditions corresponding to the character identification information and the attack content identification information are satisfied, the attack control information associated with the character identification information and the attack content identification information, and updates a content of the attack control information to the changed content.--